We have no way of verifying the source's story, so we have no further information to share. However, we have confirmed with another insider in a different forum that the game is being described in a more "emotional" manner and that this is a game where each boss has a level based on the player's level, so even at character's 10th level there will be four levels below the player. So while the new game is "difficult", we would expect the enemies to have significantly more challenges and that each will be more challenging than what's on the surface.

through using the Gamepad or another controller. The official site further states that you will be able to use the Gamepad's touchscreen (or an external camera) to "play" the game's AI AI AI at the cost of some experience gained. This experience is described as being used during actual combat, and not during side quests or when in a conversation when not directly battling a boss. The official description also states that, if an encounter comes up with a level 50 character, it takes priority over those that do not use the controller.
